Joining land, being up a choice corner.

Is it for such assessments as this that the State Board is reported as terewing bouquete at our assessor? If land worth $10 per foot is valued for taxing purposes at $8 per foot then let land worth $100 mer foot be valued for taxing purposes at $80 per foot.

Mr. Editor, I am afraid that I am taking up too much of your valuable space, and that I am running a risk of writing for the waste basket, but let me ask in the name of justice, give everybody fair play, and to my mind the best way to do it is to publish the tax list,

If you will allow me a little more sspace I want to say that I was very much surprised, while sitting in the Council chamber at the last meeting of the Council, when Councilman Moore, addressing the Chairman, said that the State Board had met in that chamber, and that th ir refusal to cut down the valuations complained of was cause for congratulation.

I wonder if Mr. Moore would feel like shaking bands with bimself had be been in the place of one of those appellants whose little home, costing about $1,2 0, was built by dollars earned at hard work in the mill at ten hours a day. This piece of property, if put on the market to-day, would not bring more than $1,600-and I doubt very much whether any one could be found willing to pay that price for it-but it is assessed for taxing purposes at $1,250. Put this alongside of the choice corner plot which I have referred to above, and which is held by a rich land speculator, and see if there is any cause for congratulations.

If this town ever had a good reason to hang out the bunting and display "Old Glory" from the housetops, I thick that there was real cause to do so when the people refused to be led to pay $150,-000 for the water plant. Why no congratulations, then? HARRY WHITE, Machines Not Infallible.

At the local election in Washington, Warren County, on Tuesday, one of the voting machines recently purchased by the State was used in one of the election districts and played such pranks with the count of the vote that the election will be nuitified. The poll book at the close of the polls showed that 401 persons had voted. The contesting factions were represented by an independent ticket and a citizens' ticket.

When the machine was opened at the slosing of the polls at 7 o'clock, the members of the Election Board nearly fainted. Snyder, running for Common Council on an independent ticket, registered 370 votes, and Burd, his running mate on the same ticket, had 369, while Gullok and Groff, their opponents, registered a vote of 370 and 369 respectively. The officers are still trying to figure it out.
